

Ipsos MORI may also ask individual homes to join the BARB TV viewing panel. Where this is done we will give you more details about who we will then share your data with, however, this will only ever be done where you have explicitly agreed for Ipsos MORI to do this.

How long we keep your personal data for

Ipsos MORI will keep your personal data for either:

- Up to 14 weeks, or
- 12 months if you have agreed to be recontacted by BARB or a BARB commissioned research agency for the purpose of further research.

Your rights in relation to your personal data

You have a number of legal rights in relation to your personal data. You can exercise any of these by contacting us using the contact details below.

Under your rights you can:

- ask for a copy of your personal data
- ask for any of your personal data which is inaccurate or out-of-date to be corrected
- ask for your personal data to be erased
- object to the processing of your personal data
- ask for the processing of your personal data to be restricted

How to contact us:

If you have any questions you can contact our Data Protection Officer at: compliance@ipsos.com

If you are not happy with how we've handled your personal data, we'd like you to contact us first and give us a chance to put it right. But you have the right to complain to the Information Commissioner if you would like to do so. You can find details about how to contact the Information Commissioner's Office at <https://ico.org.uk/global/contact-us/> or by sending an email to casework@ico.org.uk

The BARB Establishment Survey

The BARB Establishment Survey is a survey about how people receive their television programmes, the range of television channels that are received and an overall description of the household's television and other related equipment.

Ipsos MORI & BARB would like to thank you for your co-operation in taking part in this important research programme.

If you have any further questions please do not hesitate to call Dawn Viveiros at Ipsos MORI on 020 8861 8533 during office hours or email UKFieldServicesTeam@ipsos.com

About BARB

BARB stands for Broadcasters' Audience Research Board (BARB). BARB provide the TV industry with viewing figures primarily for television channels, programmes and commercials (this includes programmes and video delivered online). BARB viewing figures, sometimes known as ratings, show how many people watch TV programmes and you may have seen these figures published online or in newspapers or magazines. These figures are provided by a panel of homes across the UK who agree to let us collect information about all the TV programmes being watched.

BARB have commissioned Ipsos MORI to complete the Establishment Survey on their behalf.

About Ipsos MORI

Ipsos MORI UK Ltd (Ipsos MORI) is an independent research company. We select the homes at random and ask interviewers to visit these homes to ask if the household would be willing to complete a BARB Establishment Survey interview.

BARB and Ipsos MORI are jointly responsible in respect of the data held by Ipsos MORI about you.

How do I know you are genuine?

Ipsos MORI is a company partner of the Market Research Society (MRS) in the UK and works according to their code of conduct, laid down to protect the interests of the public. All Ipsos MORI interviewers must carry official identification.

You can call the MRS using the Freephone number 0800 975 9596 to verify that Ipsos MORI is a bona fide market research agency.

Will someone try to sell me something?

No, absolutely not. Ipsos MORI is an experienced and professional market research organisation. Using the interview for sales purposes is against our ethics and against the Market Research Society's Code of Conduct.

Why do you need my contact details?

So that we have a record of who the interview was with for quality control purposes and to ensure the interview was conducted to Market Research Society rules. All data collected by us is covered by the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) and we are also accredited with the information security 'gold standard' ISO 27001 for data security. Your details will be stored securely, will be treated in the strictest confidence and will be used for research purposes only.

Why me?

We identify and call on more than 80,000 households every year, all chosen at random, to ask about viewing habits and the TV equipment they own. We do this to make sure that our survey truly represents the whole of the UK population. Because of this, every household is important to us; the more people who say 'Yes' to an interview, whether or not they own a TV set or watch any TV programmes, the more representative the results will be.

What we collect and what we do with it

We collect important demographic information about you and other members of your household such as sex, age, working status and ethnic background. We also collect information about the equipment you have which can be used to view TV content, such as TV sets and other devices capable of connecting to the internet. This information is used to build a clear picture of how the UK population can access TV content in their own homes and includes access to online services and the ability to record and playback programmes at a later date.

We also use your data to identify homes that we would like to help us further by agreeing to take part on the viewing panel. You would be under no obligation to take part in this but, if you are selected in this way and you are interested a full explanation of what is involved will be given.

If you have agreed to be recontacted on behalf of BARB your contact details may also be used in order to do this.

Our legal basis for processing your personal data

We (Ipsos MORI and BARB) are required by law to identify the legal basis on which we process your personal data.

We process most of your personal data on the basis of 'legitimate interests'.

BARB has a legitimate interest in wanting to produce viewing figures for television programmes and commercials. Processing your personal data is the necessary means of producing viewing figures which are accurate and reliable.

Ipsos MORI process your personal data in order to further BARB's legitimate interests and our own legitimate interests in providing research services to BARB.

Ipsos MORI also collect personal data which includes details of ethnic background, health and disabilities. These are 'special categories' of personal data for which we are required to have an additional legal basis for processing. Our additional legal basis for these special categories is 'statistical purposes'. Processing these categories of personal data is necessary to produce statistics that broadcasters can use to work out how well their programming caters for different groups of the population.

Who we share your personal data with

BARB and BARB commissioned research agencies are only provided with anonymised data and aggregated reports which cannot be used to identify any individual. Your personal data will not be shared with anyone outside Ipsos MORI unless you have agreed that you are willing to be recontacted on behalf of BARB.
